

When disaster strikes, America looks to The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). FEMA prepares the nation for all hazards and manages Federal response and recovery efforts following any national incident. As an Agency, we foster innovation, reward performance and creativity, and provide challenges on a routine basis with a well-skilled, knowledgeable, high performance workforce.

FEMA has announced a Recovery Supervisory Emergency Management Specialist vacancy in New York, New York. The ideal candidate has managerial experience providing leadership and implementation of Recovery Programs with Federal, State and local emergency management organizations and experience directing a program with multi-million dollar level of resources. This position starts at a salary of $115,652.

Typical assignments include:

- Providing technical and administrative supervision to a regional staff that engaged in assisting individuals and/or communities by providing disaster support and delivering disaster assistance resulting from intentional and/or unintentional crises, disasters, other humanitarian emergencies, hazards, or natural and man-made/technological (chemical, biological, radiological, nuclear, high-yield explosives) incidents.
- Serving as a senior-level advisor to the Regional Administrator (RA) and Deputy Regional Administrator (DRA) on recovery issues.
- Interacting with the tribal, state territorial and local emergency management directors and their senior staffs; providing updates on policy procedure changes, feedback on operational issues, advising and counseling on declaration request preparation and resolving conflicts that arise to the senior level.
- Exercising supervisory responsibility for ensuring regional recovery operations are executed in accordance with headquarters, guidance and that they follow emergency management-related directives, regulations, policies, laws, standards and guidance in order to provide survivor-centric assistance.
- Directing emergency recovery operations, and ensures functional responsibilities are executed within the Stafford Act, as amended, and PPD-8, which results in the delivery of effective recovery support services to disaster-impacted Federal, State, local, tribal, territorial, non-governmental organizations, and the private sector.
- Exercising technical and administrative supervisory controls that are in keeping with a first level supervisory position, including providing subordinates the requirements and descriptions of the work to be performed and tracking progress.

To access additional information and to apply for the Recovery Supervisory Emergency Management Specialist position, please visit: <https://www.usajobs.gov/GetJob/ViewDetails/465913300>